

Legislative Analyst - House Research Department

The nonpartisan Research Department of the Minnesota House of Representatives is accepting applications for one Legislative Analyst position. This analyst will work on corporate and individual income taxes and general tax policy from a legal perspective.

This position is regular, full-time, with benefits and has an anticipated start date in late October.

An applicant must be a licensed attorney. Preference will be given to a candidate who has: (1) some knowledge of or interest in the corporate and individual tax area, (2) excellent human relations and teamwork skills; (3) excellent oral and written communication skills; (4) the ability to communicate legal information to an audience without legal training; and (5) interest in public policy and government. Knowledge of the legislative process, economics, and business regulation is desirable but not required.

The House offers a competitive salary, commensurate with experience. Please state any salary requirements in your cover letter.

The Research Department is a nonpartisan office charged with providing research and legal services to the entire membership of the House of Representatives. Legislative Analysts work independently and in small teams, providing bill and amendment drafting; research and analysis concerning laws and government policies, programs, and finances; and related staff assistance for House committees and members.
